Knew What He Wanted.

He trotted into a store where there were saleswomen to right of him, saleswoman to left of him, saleswoman in front of him, wearing an ax on his back, whether the result of his surroundings or of some inward persuasion could not be determined.

"I want a pair of gloves," he announced in determined tones, although displaying his particular clerk to contradict him; "dark brown ones, with heavy lines on the back and with three clasps." Then he seated himself triumphantly and awaited results.

"The very thing," he muttered, as he picked up a pair of those shown him, and examined them critically. "I'll take these."

After he had left the store a general figure went the rounds of the girls behind the glove counter.

"What is the matter?" asked a bystander. "I thought he acquitted himself admirably. He seemed to know exactly what he wanted."

"You heard what he asked for," replied the young woman who had sold him the gloves, "well, what he took was a pair of light gray ones, with single lines of stitching and only two clasps, and yet he said they were exactly what he wanted. Men are funny things, aren't they?"—Baltimore News.

PENMAN'S WONDERFUL FEAT.

Australian Gives London Wrapper Writers a Lesson Speed.

London Telegraph: Wrapper writing is, it would seem, a popular way of earning a livelihood with the inmates of Rowton House, a six-penny hotel. Here is an amusing story of the perfection to which it may be brought by practice and a strong will. "There is a tradition lingering among the elder brethren of the wrapper writing profession to the effect that once upon a time, when the work was better paid than now, a young man from Australia turned up and ventured as a laborer into their sphere of labor. He spent his all and found himself stranded until funds should arrive from the antipodes. So on the suggestion of an old acquaintance he applied for a job at the world-famed firm of Schmidt & Co. On being duly installed and supplied with 500 envelopes and some pages from a directory he looked around and asked for a pen. "But you have one already," said the young man in authority. "I want two," answered the Australian, and an interested and obliging fellow-scribe supplied the need. The scene which thereupon ensued baffles description, for the colonial, reparteeing the pile of envelopes into two equal lots, began copying the addresses by writing simultaneously with both hands. So run the legend at least, and furthermore it is averred that his rapidity was such as to put the 'loggers' to shame. Fifty pens dropped from the nervous grasp of those who but a minute before had been writing against time and as if for dear life. A hundred eyes were fixed in astonishment on the unknown one. Presently the young overcoiler who superintended the labors of many old enough to be his grandfather, rose and timidly said he would consult the 'governor.' The latter arrived, and the situation being explained the Australian was turned into a loose box all by himself and fled with another thousand or so of envelopes. At this rate he earned enough in two or three weeks to enable him to last out comfortably till his remittances arrived, then he went home and Schmidt's knew him no more. We asked the old gentleman who told us this yarn to fill his pipe and have another cup of tea, for we thought he deserved both."

ST. LOUIS CYCLONE CELLARS.

Many of Them Built Since the Terrible Storm of '94.

St. Louis is full of cyclone cellars, says the St. Louis Republic. Nearly all of them have been built since that terrible 27th of May. One of them has existed longer than that. It is in the home of Mr. D. L. Parrish, in Cabana place. Mr. Parrish was caught in the collapse of the old Belvidere hotel, on Washington avenue. It was a never-to-be forgotten experience, and when he began to build his home he made up his mind to provide against all emergencies. This is how he comes to have a cyclone cellar older than the cyclone. While not a thing of beauty, Mr. Parrish's "hole in the ground" is one of comfort. It is as deep as the foundation of the house and reared in the southwest corner of the cellar. Its walls are of stone, three and one-half feet thick. Heavy crossbeams form the roof of this safety house. Two windows are outwardly, one to the south, the other to the north. They were protected by iron gratings first, but Mr. Parrish very wisely has taken these out, in order to facilitate egress, should such a necessity occur. A heavy oak door that can be barred and locked makes the place burglar proof. The floor of this novel cyclone house is cemented and covered with a soft, warm carpet. A comfortable couch is fitted into one corner. In another are several massive shelves filled with provisions. These provisions are renewed every time the sky clouds up suspiciously. Mr. Parrish feels perfectly safe with his cyclone cellar. "It is very comfortable, and I am sure if the entire house blew away my cellar room would be intact," says he. "It is a protection for my wife and children while I am away, and I can bear the thought of another cyclone calamity better downtown by knowing that they have a place of shelter. During the season following the cyclone an architect friend of mine had at one time eight plans of houses on his boards, every one of which called for a cyclone cellar to match mine." Mr. Parrish's cyclone cellar is the coolest place in the house and serves another good turn in the Parrish family. The little Parrishes are excellent amateur photographers, and use it for a dark room when it is not otherwise engaged.

Important Decisions.

The Supreme court of the State last Saturday rendered a most important decision in the case of Kimball vs. Grantsville, affecting the taxing power of cities. The decision is a reversal of former rulings on the question and vitally affects residents on the outskirts of cities. We have so far been unable to secure access to the full text of the ruling, but in a later issue will endeavor to give an abstract of the decision covering all of its points which are of interest to our citizens.

Notes About Men.

William Waldorf Astor's announcement that he is a citizen of the United States is followed by the rumor that he is now negotiating for an extensive tract of wild land at Pine Plains, near Poughkeepsie, N. Y., to be used as a game preserve. Mr. Astor has been reported from time to time as being much dissatisfied with his native land and anxious to dispose of all of his real estate holdings here.

Fishing, like adversity in politics, makes strange bedfellows. Grover Cleveland and Mark Hanna are, with a number of other well known members of a tarpon fishing club which has just been organized in Texas by E. H. B. Green (son of "Hettie" Green). The organization owns a $25,000 clubhouse on Mustang Island, near Rockport, Tex.

Charles M. Schwab, president of the Carnegie Steel company entered the service of that concern in 1880 as a stake driver in the engineer corps.

UTAH COUNTY NEWS

GATHERED FOR THE READERS OF THE DEMOCRAT.

Burglary at Springville—Reservoir Talk in Our Thriving Neighbor—Well Drilling—Case at Spanish Fork.

[Special Correspondence.]

SPRINGVILLE, May 2, 1899.

The city council by a vote of 4 to 1 agreed to purchase the property of the Mapleton Canal, Reservoir & Irrigation company, 30 acres of land of J. S. Wing, and 11 acres of land of David Dibble situated in northeast Mapleton, for the total sum of $3,350. The segregated amounts are: for Canal & Reservoir, $750; J. S. Wing, $1700; D. Dibble, $880. All the certificates of stock except a few in estates were turned over to the recorder today. Wednesday the deeds and notes will be signed and the deal finally closed. The council has been talking "reservoir" several months now, and it begins to look as though something more than talk would come next.

Last Sunday night or evening the houses of Mr. Thos. S. Kelly, Mr. Roy Packard and Mr. H. M. Douglass, Jr., were burglarized while the respective owners were absent. From Mr. Kelly's a lady's watch, 2 watch chains and a finger ring were taken; from Mr. Packard's a value, blankets, underclothing, a clock, etc., were taken, and from Mr. Douglass's cash, $9, and jewelry amounting to some $65. Though the matter was not reported to Marshal Gammell until 11 o'clock Monday, that officer, with the assistance of Sheriff Storrs and Henry, had by 4 o'clock p. m. identified the culprit and tracked him to the R. G. W. depot where he bought a ticket for Grand Junction, Colorado, and boarded No. 4 passenger. Sheriff Wallace was immediately notified and shortly wired Sheriff Storrs that he had his man. This morning the sheriff returned with his "slippery guy" and landed him in the county jail. Springville is fast becoming famous for work of this character, but the smooth work of the officers will make them few and far between.

That new well driver of J. E. Hall's has taken up a position near Mr. T. M. Dent's residence for an initiative trial trip to realus below. This is the locality where Mr. Hall spent so many hard days work and lost so many feet of pipe last fall without success. The new machine is an original design in many respects, the best features of several other machines being woven together. A new steam pump is attached, having a capacity of 80 gallons per minute. The new machine is capable of driving any sized pipe from 1 to 6 inches in diameter. It is undoubtedly the best machine of its kind in the valley and has "success" in its pathway. Only men of mechanical skill and ability will operate it, and the public will be pleased to know that its first task begins Wednesday, May 3.

County Jots.

J. P. Riley was found guilty at Spanish Fork Monday of robbing a man named Rollins as he rode detailed in "THE DEMOCRAT." He was fined $15 and sent up for 30 days in the county jail. He was brought over the same day and lodged in the Hotel de Soors.

Utah County Teachers.

The Utah county teachers met at the Central school building in this city yesterday. The meeting was well attended and was the last of a series of special meetings of that association, which have been held in different parts of the county semi-monthly. The time was taken up principally by lectures. Prof. E. S. Hinckley of the B. Y. Academy, Provo, delivered a lecture on "Historical Geology" in the morning session, and the afternoon session was taken up by Prof. W. M. Wolfe of the B. Y. Academy, who delivered a discourse on "Zoology."

The public school closed here this week. The closing exercises were held at the city hall Friday. The primary grades held their exercises in the afternoon, and the grammar grades held their exercises in the evening. Promotion certificates were given to 489 pupils. —Springville correspondence Tribune, April 30.

"Spider and Fly."

The "Spider and Fly" which is booked for next Monday, May 8th, at the Provo opera house is again meeting with its former success, during its late tour of the Northwest. During its engagement at Portland the "Telegram" gave its strong comment as follows:

Leavitt's spectacular extravaganza "The Spider and Fly" was the attraction at the theater last night. The house was packed and a more appreciated performance has not been given at this house in many a day. While there is little resembling a plot in the play, it is one of those rollicking, mirth producing productions that kept an audience in roars of laughter. The numerous specialty features in which "The Spider and Fly" abounds are above the average. The company is good, and the performance satisfactory.

Manager Jones is receiving congratulations on all hands upon his good fortune in procuring such a high class attraction. "The Spider and Fly" is one of the biggest successes on the stage today. Crowded houses are the rule in every city and town in which the show has been given, and there is reason to believe that the "standing room only" sign will have to be displayed at the opera house Monday night.

A sale by auction that greatly interested Cairo recently was that of Lord Kitchener's furniture and bric-a-brac, which seems to indicate that the Sirdar is not likely to take up his residence in Cairo again. Five hundred lots were offered for sale, and these included several fine Oriental cabinets, bronze Empire clocks, Chippendale furniture and other more modern things.

City Council.

The city council held their regular session Monday evening. Their committee on sewerage presented the following report:

We, your committee on sewerage, beg leave to report as follows, in the matter of the probable cost to sewer blocks Nos. 67 and 68, plat A, Provo City:

We have figured on an 8-inch pipe to be laid in the streets as follows: Beginning opposite the northeast corner of block 67, plat A, at a point 10 feet east of the curb line on the west side of I street, thence south to 8th street, 10 feet beyond the north curb line, thence west to factory race. We find the grade would be one inch to the rod. The cost would be $750, as follows:

1240 feet of 8-inch pipe at 25 cents per foot at works.....	$310.00
1340 feet of trench at 17 cents per foot.....	228.80
60 yards at $1.....	60.00
For laying pipe, backfilling and cement.....	107.20
Three man holes with curb and cap at $15.....	45.00
40 plugs at 15 cents.....	6.00

Total.....$756.00
